That leaves the Senate deal as the only game in town, with the debt ceiling deadline and its attendant risk of default only a day away.

“No company should jeopardize the progress being made in tackling this emergency by overcharging for a critically important drug like naloxone,” Rep